

The Integrated Chakra System

"He had in his right hand seven stars" Revelations 1:16

I have this wonderful new laptop computer that goes with me everywhere. It has an Intel Pentium M-Processor and a 60 GB Hard Drive (BRAIN) with 512 MB of RAM (memory). It even has a Wireless Network switch that allows me to connect to the Universal Worldwide Internet wherever I go. The neatest aspect of this Toshiba Portege PC Notebook Computer is that the screen flips around and lays flat so that I can write on it with the stylus pen in my own handwriting. It is very personalized in a way that no other computer can be allowing your personal imprint (signature or DNA) to be expressed like no other type of hardware. However...as neat and as awesome the hardware is...built incredibly well (Toshiba being a well built product)... stylish and compact...without the software it is useless to me. Microsoft Windows XP & Tablet PC software organize the system and provide the framework or structure to enable the specific functions of the unique capacity of this computer...much like the CHAKRA system does for the body. I can have the ideal body frame & structure and perfectly functioning human anatomical parts...but if the CHAKRA system (much like WINDOWS XP...the Chakras are all like little windows (or wheels like vortices of light) in the system with x-trasensory perception...they are the psychic energy centers within the subtle or etheric body...the centers of integration for the mind or psychic forces and the bodily functions and/or the organizational centers for the reception, assimilation and transmission of life energy) did not exist with all it's related uniquely designed software that creates a network of connections (the NADIS – channels of vital energy in the subtle body which intersect at different chakras) thru the Endocrine system and other related systems of the body...we as humans would not be able to function wholly as we were divinely designed. As Leadbeater describes it...the Chakras are the vehicles of which streams of vitality flow thru which keep the body alive. He also says that without them as a bridge for conveying undulations of thought and feeling from the astral plane to the visible denser physical matter...the ego could make no use of the cells of the brain. Because we are 'SPIRITUAL BEINGS having a Human Experience'...we need software to integrate our spiritual energy with the Physical body (Hardware). The Chakra system forms a bridge or an alliance in our humanness that connects us with Heaven and Earth, Spirit and Matter, Mind and Body, Masculine and Feminine, and aligns our inner states with the outer world. The Chakras are basically an anatomy chart of the divine energy within the human body and as part of the invisible realms...are of great importance to us. They are not to be confused with their specific anatomical locations along the spine (because they are energetic/ethereal rather than physical in form) but understood to be connected to the areas of highly concentrated nerve ganglia centers or plexuses...where there is high nervous activity. At the 1st chakra is the coccygeal plexus, the 2nd is the sacral plexus, the 3rd is the solar plexus, the 4th is the pulmonary or cardiac plexus, the 5th is the pharyngeal plexus, the 6th is the brow or carotid plexus and the 7th is the cerebral cortex. Chakras provide a map along the body highway and ensure that the life force flows properly inwards and outwards from the system...much like a top would spin. They can act as capacitors that amp up to increase the energy output & flow OR resistors that slow the energy down to move into more subtler realms.

Now simply because there is a map for the chakras...does not ensure that you will 'visit' these locations along the body highway. The system needs energy...breath and life energy to activate the latent energy contained within these vortex centers. Much like with a computer...simply because there are software programs on the system in its memory...does not mean that they are being utilized. You have to go to the Start Menu and select the program you would like to run. However...the main operating system...Windows XP...is always in the background providing the main framework. In the human system...the energy coming thru that activates the 'software of the body' is the 'Shakti' in the Sanskrit tradition...Chi in the Chinese...Ki in the Japanese...Prana in the Indian...Wakan in the Native American and Life Force in the American. The Shakti or Life Force energy...(much like a battery or plug with the Cord attached will give a computer juice or energy)...enables the chakras or energy plexuses along the body's central axis to circulate/spin up and down the sashumná (central channel) thru the liberating and manifesting currents and enable the functions of each of the chakras to operate. Out of the 1st...we can survive or manifest...out of the second we can engage sexually and creatively...out of the third we can feel and exert our personal power...out of the fourth we can express love...out of the fifth we can speak our truth (communication)...out of the sixth we can envision (clairvoyance)...and out of the seventh we can have thought (wisdom). When were in love...we feel a fluttering in the heart (the 4th)...when we're nervous before a performance we might feel butterflies in our stomach (3rd c)...and when we're upset we might feel a lump in our throat (5th c). These are all examples of manifestations in the body of the energy of the chakras. When chakra centers are undeveloped they appear as small circles about two inches in diameter glowing dully with sluggish motion in the ordinary man (as Leadbeater describes) and when they are awakened and vivified they are seen as blazing, coruscating whirlpools, much increased in size, and resembling radiant miniature suns.

I mentioned before that Windows XP and Tablet PC softwares are the main driving softwares for my unique computer. However...I have many other pieces of software on the system as well...such as the programs in the Microsoft office suite. Microsoft office includes Publisher, Power Point, Excel, Access, Outlook and Word (the program that I am Using to create this document). All these pieces of software handle independent functions...much like the Individual Seven Chakras handle individual functions. However, they are organized in such a matter that they relate and integrate with each other in the entire system as a whole. For instance...if I open Outlook...the Internet mail program...I am also able to open an attachment to an email that may be in Microsoft Word at the same time because they are built to communicate with each other (as well as alone). They all have colors of each other in the other one...somewhat like all the chakras have some of the colors of the other chakras in them. This concept presents itself much like the ancient yin-yang symbol...yin being the feminine or receptive energy and yang being the masculine or activating energy...there is a dot of black in the white and a dot of white in the black. Each (chakra or piece of software) has it's own unique energy but it is not mutually exclusive of the other...they are integrated into the whole.

The odd numbered chakras...1, 3, 5 & 7 contain the masculine energies where the even numbered...2nd, 4th & 6th chakras contain the feminine. However, they are woven into each other in the whole. All the software programs in the computer...like the chakra programs (1-7 and beyond...earth and Universal/World Wide-Network or 8th) in the human body...integrate as a whole system or network that provides the whole framework for the system to flow fluidly and handle all related functions individually and with each other. And all the chakras vibrate at various frequency levels...moving from slow and dense at the first to fast, frequent and light at the 7th or as the call it in the Hindu Tradition... 'The Thousand Petaled Lotus'. The chakras also integrate Physical characteristics at the lower 3 chakras...with the heart or 4th being a bridge point to the Mental characteristics in the upper three chakras. Leadbeater also classifies the chakras into three different groups...the lower or physiological...the middle or personal and the higher or the spiritual. The first (with four petals/spokes) and the second (with six petals/spokes) are primarily concerned with receiving the energy that comes into the body at the physical level...the serpent-fire from the earth and the vitality from the sun. The center three chakras (3,4,5) with 10, 12 & 16 petals/spokes respectively...are engaged with the forces that reach man thru his personality. (Lower Astral for 3, Higher Astral for 4 and Lower Mind for 5) And centers 6 & 7 stand apart with their multi-layered spokes and connections to the pineal and pituitary glands. These centers come into action only when a certain amount of spiritual practice and development has taken place. So the system is multilayered and multifaceted...expressing and integrating different characteristics with each other and with the hardware system on the whole. The first expresses the element of earth...the second of water...the third of fire...the fourth of air...the fifth of sound...the sixth of light and the seventh of thought.

When all seven chakras are active and functioning optimally...we live a life of physical, mental and spiritual health. This is an IDEAL concept that we all strive for continually and is part of the ongoing journey on earth. However...there are often 'bugs' or 'viruses' (sometimes from the collective consciousness or World Wide Web...limiting BS/belief systems...negative thoughts...low consciousness or shadow thoughts...memories of physical, emotional and or psychological traumas or abuses...etc..) in the system that keep things from functioning at an optimal level. These bugs or viruses create excessiveness and deficiencies in the chakras that determine characterologies that are based on less than optimum functioning in the system. Although there is a system of determining these characterologies based on shadow functioning realities...it is complicated to determine how to return the system to it's optimum level. That is why the 'Healing Arts' is a multi-layered and multi-faceted system involving many types of (software) systems that are unique to themselves... (ie; Energy Therapy including Aromatherapy, Accutronics, Homeopathy, Accupuncture, etc..) but also complement and integrate with each other in addressing the whole of a person. And...there are lots of different brands and styles of computers much like there are all different types of human being on the planet with different soul developments and soul paths. Who is to say what is Ideally Optimum...it can be different for everyone based on their own unique DNA. However...there are basic principles for ideal functioning as spiritual humans looking at a range of factors. Mostly...we are really sensing or looking at the whole of the person...much like we would a computer...and simply comparing observations with ideal energetic and physical functioning in the system. We want to ideally be able to turn on the computer and work with the interrelated network of software and have it simply work properly...in an integrated fashion...according to its ideal Divine Design. In order to override or address issues in the system that are blocking or getting in the way of the software working properly according to design (we ideally want chakras open and clear...not open and crowded or closed)...there are systems of assessment to support optimum functioning. We can use an Anti-Virus software program like 'Norton' on virtually any computer to detect bugs or viruses in the system to keep things clear. And with us as humans...there are different systems...like Yoga Systems...that are recommended to do for maintaining the optimal functioning of the system...with the Chakras spinning properly (clockwise) at a balanced level...and in harmony with each other and with their related connections to the physical body (hardware). Based on a person's development over the course of their life...their personal software system or Chakra system can develop excessiveness or deficiencies in any of the individual chakras that affect the whole of the system. These are like 'viruses' in the system. It takes a reorganization (and consciousness/awareness) of the files...and a reactivation of the main program by finding and deleting the virus...throwing away the files we don't need anymore (old/outdated programs (ie; ways of being that are ok in childhood but not necessary or optimal in adulthood...traumas/abuses...shadow realities...limited belief systems) and reorganizing the ones we do.

We need to do hardware and software maintenance to keep our computers running at optimum efficiency. And in our work as ET's or Energy Therapists...we can help to support optimal functioning by acting as the 'anti-virus' program for people's individual systems. Throughout the course of our development at Earthwalk...we are progressively developing our Consciousness based on the integrated combination of...the Universal software...(Earthwalk XP...based on the teachings developed thru Anoeda Judith's work, Leadbeater's work and Gloria Two-Feather's and the Earthwalk Staff's Integrated Work...each presenting their piece into the whole of the consciousness of Earthwalk...the teacher's all as individual Chakras integrated into the whole of the teachings) and our own individual software based on our own healing journey. Often...the Chakras need activating, cleansing and Integrating in order to create a harmonious and holistic Chakra system and this makes our work as Energy Therapists important and a well-needed therapy whose time has come in this day and age of conscious awareness and advanced spiritual development. The basic framework for the Chakra System has always been there since the beginning of humanity with its roots of consciousness in the ancient Hindu texts written in Sanskrit from thousands of years ago. However...now we have a System for knowledge and application (developed not only thru the modern texts written in our native English language but thru the school integrating the information and application into an organized system.) much like this computer age has software systems for multiple applications to optimize our lives and work here on earth today.
